Aryaduta Hotel, Tugu Tani, Central Jakarta, Indonesia

OVERVIEW

Controlling costs and mitigating risks are the general rules most businesses abide by to maximize productivity and profit. Hence, more and more companies are turning to Mediation as the first step in dispute resolution.

What is Mediation ? Why is everyone using Mediation increasingly to resolve disputes in business? How does one prepare effectively for mediation?

The aim of this workshop is to give participants some practical tips on how to avoid potential pitfalls and mitigate risks in managing cross-border investments in the region.

Conducted jointly by Pusat Mediasi Nasional (PMN) and the Singapore International Mediation Centre (SIMC), participants will engage in customised role plays to simulate mediation of complex cross-border disputes. The sessions are designed to be highly interactive to engage participants in hands-on creative problem-solving, communication management, and critical process design.

The programme is rigorous and presents a significant volume of material on mediation skills, knowledge and ethics in a very condensed time frame.
